

WEIXIN QUEK CHONG

Chong's (b.1988, Singapore) work draws from her fascination with the stylisation of natural elements, digital and organic memory systems, and the relationship between surface and perceived superficiality. These concerns are seen as material metaphors for human social relationships and the psychology behind structures and projections of power, value and desire. Using diverse methods of reproducing and manipulating images across media, the artist uses signifiers of digital and organic elements to reflect on perceptions of collective histories.
